Objectives

This 2nd edition of the National Doctoral Conference on Biological Sciences aims to support doctoral students and allow them to discuss their research work and share their research concerns with experienced professors and their peers.

This conference offers doctoral students the opportunity to exchange ideas and benefit from the experiences of senior researchers in the same field through conferences and round tables, which will allow them to establish research support relationships and potentially find partners for future collaboration. Our conference is aimed at different profiles of doctoral students, namely; at the intermediate stage, less advanced stage and in the final phase.

The conference organizing committee strongly invites you to submit abstracts of your recent research related to biological sciences and their applications.
